COA for STU LANCASTER: 9225 Santa Fe Lane, Overland Park, KS 66212

Summer and Fall 1910 are due by deadline on page 1. PRESS follows:

GERMANY: I've been a toady, and I've been a dodo, and let me tell you, being a dodo is better! But...how is Mazzer gonna stab me THIS time?

BER to ROM & ANK: Please be gentle. If I managed this position to a one-center defeat, I'd never live it down.

GERMANY to ITALY: Don't be afraid, anything you said to Willard, you can say to me (if you wish to die!).

GERMANY: Yea Reagan! Zap the Commies and the damn liberals and the hippies and the freaks and the weirdos! And yay for America and Alex Lord and James Watt! (Olsen to board: I found this press crumpled up in the fireplace of the Reich Chancellory. I thought I'd better send it in case there was any Hightower Nostalgia going around...not too likely but...)

BERLIN to LONDON: I'm willing to continue the alliance, on one condition only. I, and only I, get to say how to spell the word "Feuhrer." Do you agree or do I find another ally? ((Rancidville to London: Sounds like a good deal for you. All ya gotta do is humor the Feuhrer with an occasional Seig Hiel.))

OLSEN to GM: Don't go to K.C., there won't be anybody there but freaks and weirdos. Instead make plans to come to Wichita the weekend of August 13th. Remember last year you weaseled out of it with some feeble excuse or other; not this time! ((No indeed! I don't plan to try that excuse ever again. And let me check my calendar....))

BERLIN to GM: The return of Olsen press...guess you forgot how boring it really is. Too bad. ((Maybe, but consider the previous alternative. At least you have a multisyllabic vocabulary...even if your German spelling's on a par with Highcolonic's.))

(DnD-2 Press))

LONDON: Sources close to His Majesty revealed that Lord Hume has been suggested as the new emissary to Germany. Someone must meet with the new German Head of State, and it is felt that Hume can meet him eye to intellectual eye.

LIVERPOOL: Crowds surrounding Liverpool Mercy were delighted to see the popular Lord Hume wheeled from the hospital door. His collapse was diagnosed as over-indulgence.

EDINBURGH: Admiralty sources, commenting on the proposed naming of Lord Hume as ambassador to Berlin, were quoted as saying, "Second time lucky. Maybe the new Kaiser will do for the old sot."

A SCENE IN A SEATTLE BAR: Terry Tallman is sitting at a table, sipping beer. A skinny sailor storms into the bar. "I'm Bill Highfield and I've got something to say to you, Tallman!" Terry finishes his beer and stands up, facing Highfield. "Yes?" "Uh, nice belt buckle you have there."

SEATTLE to HIGHTHUMPER: You specifically asked that I not get the position -- and I'm not even a standby for this szine -- and you get the other Kansas boy. The Pudge, Lancaster's favorite Toady. How can he lose now that he can all but write orders for the Kraut units? Bob "Blow those centers" Olsen won't last three seasons. Unless Mazzer is called for someone: then Bob will be out in two seasons.

SEATTLE to RUSSELLVILLE: Me, I would have told him Tallman was the only standby you had. Make him suffer. And did I ever tell you the stories about how they take midshipmen down to the bilges, strip them, coat them with lube grease and stash their clothes so they have to sneak back to their quarters nude? My brother, a former E-5, says it's pretty funny. Bill will love his first cruise.

1982 CH (DnD-4: The Aliens' Game)

BUDAPEST: Attempting to alleviate concern that the government of Austria has gone "crazy," Archduke Ellis stepped to the podium and began, "Rumania will be ours! Ha, ha, ha!" he laughed madly. "Then Smyrna, heh, heh! And then..." The Archduke was interrupted at this point as three nice young men in little white suits apprehended the Archduke and performed a frontal lobotomy on him then and there. "He needed it, after that botch in Rumania," was the popular sentiment. All the Archduke would say was, "Eee, Ooo, Mmm, Uuh, Zzz?"

MOSCOW to BUDAPEST: Dumb. Really Dumb.

MOSCOW to (NOW EXILED) KAISER: Thanks for the dying gesture. Good luck in DnD-6. Good luck in DnD-2 for that matter.

1982 CP (DnD-5: The General Belgrano Pro-Am)

WINTER 1903: Austria -- B A Vie; France -- Rem F Bre; Germany -- B A Mun; Italy -- B F Nap; Russia -- B A Mos.

TURKEY(Michael Pustilnik,3): A arm-SMY, F CON S F bla-BUL(ec).

What, no COAs or NMRs? Summer and Fall 1904 are due by deadline on page 1. PRESS:

GERMANY to FRANCE: You are getting a tremendous name for valiantly trying to turn the allies of everyone who's stabbed you against them. Keep up the good work -- you could be the next Jim Wall.

GERMANY to HIGHTHUMPER: Hmmm, couldn't handle all us pacifists?

GERMANY to ITALY: As long as we're on the same track everything is wonderful.

BERLIN to ENGLAND: We're really going to miss Hightumper. He was so much fun to abuse in the press.

BERLIN to AUSTRIA: Who goes there?

PARIS to GERMANY: My "Risk" game won't help at all. I'd have to buy about 20 sets to get enough different pieces for fleets and armies. But bullets sound good. Not plastic - real ones. Say .380 auto for armies and 9mm Parabellum or .357 Mag for fleets. Thanks for the idea.

FRANCE to ITALY: The lost fleets (2) of France have interred in port. You fought well. Now I'll let up on you and you can rest.

CON to MOS: Crying already Barno? Just because I've kicked your ass game after game? This one will be no exception!

BERLIN to ALL: Please excuse the silence imposed by a hectic schedule. I'll send communications this season. ((That was translated from a phone message taken partly in shorthand by my wife. Hope it's what you meant to say, Dave.))
